The Manager,
Siemens

Dear Sir/Madam,

APPLICATION FOR BUSINESS INTELLIGENCE ANALYST, SIEMENS MOBILITY

It is with profound pleasure and enthusiasm that I wish to apply for the position of business intelligence analyst in Siemens. My euphoria in this position stem from the fact that my skills and experience match the mission and vision of the initiative in a very good way.

Through my professional and academic advancement, I have developed a proficient use of python programming language in building machine learning algorithms and developing efficient solutions to problems. I also have an in-depth understanding of the mathematics behind these models thus giving me cutting edge to be able to manipulate or tweak them to achieve better results to suit business needs and develop other novel solutions.

In addition, through my participation in conferences such as the Next Einstein Forum, Heidelberg laureate Forum etc I have gained a wealth of experience with regards to building relationships at different levels. I thus have extensive experience in nurturing and mentoring young aspiring professionals, liaising with my cohorts as well as networking with senior professional colleagues.

With my over 6 months working experience with a digital orchestration company based in Senegal, I have been able to horn my skills in working in a diverse cross-country and cross-cultural team . During, this time I further developed my proficiency in working with machine learning models by developing risk scoring models for farmers, hence making it easier to acquire loans from financial service institutions.

Given my skill combination set, I am sure that if given this opportunity to work with a reputable company like Siemens I would contribute positively in achieving the goals and mission of the company in a very good way.

I hope my application meets your kind consideration.
Yours Sincerely,

Deborah Dormah Kanubala
